Learn to manage cultural and ethnic diversity and deliver health education results with this leading resource Cultural Competence in Health Education and Health Promotion, 3rd Edition extensively covers a host of crucial topics on the subject of health education and promotion to various cultural and ethnic groups. The authors provide concrete strategies and practical advice for those seeking to maximize the health-related results they achieve from their education efforts. The significant updates in this newest edition of Cultural Competence in Health Education and Health Promotion include: Updated and expanded demographic information on select groups based on the most up-to-date census data The use of universal design for diverse populations Examples of programs to increase health literacy among diverse groups Including updated case scenarios and new, innovative health programs, the 3rd edition of Cultural Competence in Health Education and Health Promotion represents an unprecedented leap forward for this already celebrated series. It's perfect for any health educator who deals with an ethnically or culturally diverse population.

In this book the editors have tried to capture the diversity and divergence of theories and practices related to adult basic education, capturing a particular period in time and providing a basis for future directions. This book has three main purposes: -providing an introductory statement and resource for graduate students in adult education -providing an overview of the field for professionals in related areas -providing a source of information for those who value being informed generally about a variety of topics and issues in adult basic education. Sections: Historical and philosophical perspectives, The adult literacy dimensions, Elements in the program planning process. Assessment in adult basic education, remedial approaches in basic education, Training and professional development, Variables and settings in education, The international perspective Chapters include: - Definitions and evolution of the concepts - Selected chronology of literacy events - Literacy- 'Autonomous v. Ideological' - Implications of technological change for adult education - Community-based literacy programming - Creating curriculum: A learner-centred approach - Applying naturalistic evaluation in Basic Education - Remedial learning: An experiential approach - Administration of Adult Basic Education Programs - International sharing: Learning from the experience of others.

A high level of literacy in both print and digital media is required for negotiating most aspects of 21st-century life, including supporting a family, education, health, civic participation, and competitiveness in the global economy. Yet, more than 90 million U.S. adults lack adequate literacy. Furthermore, only 38 percent of U.S. 12th graders are at or above proficient in reading. Improving Adult Literacy Instruction synthesizes the research on literacy and learning to improve literacy instruction in the United States and to recommend a more systemic approach to research, practice, and policy. The book focuses on individuals ages 16 and older who are not in K-12 education. It identifies factors that affect literacy development in adolescence and adulthood in general, and examines their implications for strengthening literacy instruction for this population. It also discusses technologies for learning that can assist with multiple aspects of teaching, assessment,and accommodations for learning. There is inadequate knowledge about effective instructional practices and a need for better assessment and ongoing monitoring of adult students' proficiencies, weaknesses, instructional environments, and progress, which might guide instructional planning. Improving Adult Literacy Instruction recommends a program of research and innovation to validate, identify the boundaries of, and extend current knowledge to improve instruction for adults and adolescents outside school. The book is a valuable resource for curriculum developers, federal agencies such as the Department of Education, administrators, educators, and funding agencies.

Practical reference for prospective teachers and literacy education professionals who want a clear, overall perspective of instructional procedures and who approach their teaching with a view of experimentation and decision making.
